OFFICERS RAID 'CHICKEN COOP' NORTH OF CITY

Eight Juveniles, Two Adults Arrested in Unlicensed Dance Hall.

FIND HIDDEN LIQUOR

Three Boys and Five Girls Ranging from 11 to 16 in Detention Home.

Activity at the "Chicken Coop," located two miles north of Marion on Upper Sandusky pike, and alleged by authorities to be a speakeasy suspended suddenly late Saturday night when city and county officers raided the place, seized a quantity of alleged liquor, arrested two persons and ordered eight juveniles into court.

The "coop" consisted of an old garage which had been remodeled into a dance hall, and a small building in the rear in which a small bar had been erected. Forty persons were attempting to dance, and liquor was flowing freely when authorities joined the party shortly before midnight Saturday.

Hold Proprietor

Authorities are holding Adam J. Sherman as proprietor of the "coop." Sherman, according to reports of officers, had dumped one can of liquor and was emptying another when officers seized him. One other adult, Ted Longacre, was arrested on a charge of intoxication.

Eight juveniles, including three boys and five girls, between the ages of 11 and 16, were among the 40 persons in the dance hall and bar room at the time of the raid. The minors are at the detention home, awaiting action in juvenile court.

Heavy rainfall aided Sheriff C. C. Fye, Deputies Chester Cosgrove and M. E. Baldwin, and City Patrolmen E. C. Macken and Harry Smith as they surrounded the Chicken Coop" Saturday night for the raid. The rain not only muffled the sound of their approach, but also drove all celebrants into the crowded dance hall for shelter before the raid.

Patrolman Macken and Deputy Sheriff Cosgrove entered the "coop" in time to prevent Sherman from emptying a can of liquor, they reported. He already had dumped one can when they entered, the officers said. A pitcher partially filled with liquor was also seized.

Find Liquor Hidden

Meantime, Deputy Baldwin and other authorities found eight pint bottles of whisky in a bucket concealed in a rubbish pile near the building. Several hundred empty bottles were found.

Approximately 40 persons, dancing to the music of a trio of colored musicians, were obliged to furnish officials with their names and addresses before being permitted to leave. All minors were detained and taken to the detention home.

SHOT AGAIN

Life is developing plenty of excitement for Jack (Legs) Diamond, notorious gangster, pictured above. PROPOSE NEW CHURCH RULES

Divorce and Birth Control Subjects of Episcopal and Presbyterian Reports.

OLD CANONS ATTACKED

Commissions Favor Revision of Regulations of Long Standing.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 27—Changes in church codes are proposed in reports published today by official groups within the Protestant Episcopal church and the Presbyterian church in the United States of America.

An Episcopalian commission appointed six years ago recommended the adoption of virtually a new canon covering the church's attitude toward divorce and remarriage. A commission of the Presbyterian church deploring the increasing divorce rate, gave its approval to birth control and suggested the establishment of courses for instruction in marriage.

Church Courts Advocated

The revised canon of the Episcopal church advocated the creation of ecclesiastical courts to pass on problems of marriage. It would permit ministers to remarry communicants and divorced persons under certain circumstances, eliminate all mention of ground for divorce and remarriage, and define nine causes for annulment. Even though a minister should officiate at the marriage of a communicant and one divorced, the ceremony could not be conducted in a church edifice nor could the book of common prayer be used.

At present an Episcopalian minister cannot in anv circumstances officiate at the remarriage of a

'LEGS' DIAMOND AGAIN SHOT BY UNKNOWN FOES

Notorious New York Gangster Attacked at Door of Mountain Inn.

BUCKSHOT ENTERS BACK

Mystery Shooting Occurs Week After Indictment on Torture Charge.

By The Associated Press

CATSKILL, N. Y., April 27—Jack (Legs) Diamond, gangster, for the second known time was cut down and seriously injured by the gunfire of unknown assailants early today.

The gang chief who six months ago was shot and almost fatally injured in a New York City hotel room, went down today under the patering fire of buckshot, sent into his back as he stepped from a Catskill mountain roadhouse west of this village. The shooting occurred three days after Diamond had been released in $25,000 bail, pending trial for a charge of assault.

Like the New York City instance, mystery clothed the shooting. The gangster himself could give no information and the companion who snatched his fallen chief back into the shelter of the roadhouse could only say that the gunfire came from a distance about 20 paces from the building.

Find Empty Shells

A hatful of empty shells and apparently fired from an automatic shotgun were picked up between the glassed-in porch of the Saratoga Inn and the highway. The gunman obviously fired in haste and fled. Of the nine shots fired, each carrying a dozen pellets, only one shell load struck Diamond.

The fallen gangster was hurried to an Albany hospital by two men, not immediately identified. While seriously injured, his condition was not believed to be critical.

Two state troopers were assigned to watch Diamond.

Diamond's history contains the official record of one previous shooting and the report that a still earlier incident had placed lead in his body. On Oct. 2, 1930, the man who at one time was reputed to be the bodyguard of Arnold Rothstein was shot by two men who entered his New York City hotel room. For weeks his life apparently depended on chance. With his recovery, Diamond left the city and moved into a house near Acra, 18 miles west of this village. Accompanying him to his mountain stronghold were several of his gang.

His name appeared in Greene county news from time to time until a week ago, when he flashed into front page prominence with his indictment by a grand jury. The indictment was based on the alleged beating by Diamond and a companion, Jim Dalton, of a Cairo truck driver who said he had been stopped by the men and tortured because he refused to account satisfactorily for a load of cider.

MARYSVILLE TO GET NEW OHIO CONTRACT

White Signs Bill Authorizing Agreement on Reformatory Sewage Disposal.

A bill authorizing the state director of welfare to make a new contract with Marysville for the disposal of sewage from the Marysville Women's reformatory was among six measures signed today by Governor White.

The bill was introduced, the Associated Press said, by Representative J. Grant Gault, Republican of Union county, to provide a more equitable contract for the city.

One of the most important of the measures signed by the governor was the bill for the recodification of the Ohio probate court laws. The bill was submitted by a committee of the Ohio State Bar association after three years of investigation.

Other bills signed provide penalties for the use of slugs in operation of pay telephones, for the union of city and general health districts, for banks to establish branches in the same county with the parent institution and to permit Ohio insurance companies to write workmen's compensation and welfare insurance in other states.

DISCOVERY OF NEW STARS ANNOUNCED

40,000 Times Brighter Than Sun, Says Astronomer; New Facts on Universe Likely.

BY F. B. COLTON
Associated Press Science Writer.

WASHINGTON, April 27—Discovery of stars 40,000 times as radiant as the sun and as much as 186,000,000 miles across was announced today before the National Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, astronomer and director of the Harvard observatory, told of the huge new stars in describing explorations into distant reaches of space that may shed new light on the "limits" of the universe and on mathematical theories about the nature of space.

He spoke at the opening session of the three-day annual meeting of the National Academy, whose members are chosen as a result of outstanding accomplishments in science.

Discovery of the enormous new stars resulted from a census being taken by the Harvard observatory of the thousands of remote galaxies, giant star clusters that contain tens of billions of stars and are thousands of light years across. The galaxies serve as distant "mile posts" in the night sky with the aid of which Dr. Shapley is seeking new knowledge of the universe.

The "boundaries of space, or at least the boundaries of the space occupied by galaxies, apparently still are far beyond the reach of man's largest telescopes, Dr. Shapley said. So far as his galaxy census has shown there is no evidence that telescopes are approaching these boundaries. The greatest distance the largest telescopes have been able to "see" is about 200 million light years. That is the distance light would travel in 200 million years at its speed of approximately 186,000 miles a second.

OHIO COLLEGE "BARONS" HIT

Attorneys for Miami Co-ed Make Attack on Arbitrary Expulsion Rule.

By United Press

HAMILTON, O., April 27 — Alleged arbitrary rules "made by the college barons," were assailed by attorneys for Miss Jean West of Portsmouth in a brief filed today in common pleas court where Miss West, a student in the teachers' college at Miami university, is seeking an injunction to enjoin university officials from expelling her.

Miss West, daughter of William West, Portsmouth city plumbing inspector, instituted the action after she was ordered dropped from the school rolls because of failure to meet scholastic requirements of the first semester.

Await Filing of Briefs

The case was heard last week but the court reserved decision, pending filing of briefs by opposing attorneys.

"Is college only for the superstudent?" Miss West's brief, filed by McLaughlin and Staker, Portsmouth lawyers, asked. The brief then assailed the "arbitrary rules laid down by the university barons" and declared "it was not the intent of the state in founding such colleges supported by public funds as Miami is to exclude students, except those who can absorb education at a given rate of absorption."

"What a departure it is from the idea of compulsory education for youths from 6 to 16," the brief said.

The attorneys denied the right of the university to expel a student in the manner in which Miss West, who failed in music and art, was ordered to leave.

Attorneys for Miami have three days remaining in which to file their brief. Miss West, meantime, has been permitted to return.

School officials have denied she was expelled, declaring she was under suspension and could reenter miami at the beginning of the next semester.

PLEA OF GUILTY IS ENTERED BY 'KILLER' BURKE

Notorious Gangster Arraigned Today Before Circuit Court in Michigan.

FACES LIFE IN PRISON

Sentence To Be Set at Once, for Slaying of Patrolman Skelly.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 27—Fred Burke today was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor in Michigan branch prison at Marquette. He is expected to be taken to prison tomorrow.

* * *

By The Associated Press

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 27—Fred Burke pleaded guilty today to the slaying of Patrolman Charles Skelly of St. Joseph, Mich., in December, 1929.

The notorious midwestern gangster made his plea as he was brought before Circuit Judge Charles E. White in the Berrien circuit court at the afternoon session.

A hearing was immediately started to determine the sentence to be imposed. Life imprisonment is the maximum sentence for murder in Michigan.

Earlier in the day it was indicated Burke would be immediately sentenced and taken to prison if he pleaded guilty.

One of Many Crimes

Burke's plea ended a career of crime which made him notorious in a dozen cities in the midwest. The crime to which he pleaded guilty was the least spectacular of a long series of bank robberies and gunster assassinations with which he had been linked.

Patrolman Skelly was slain by Burke when he stepped onto the running board of the gangster's automobile to question him about a traffic accident in which he had figured. At that time Burke had been living incognito for some time in an elaborately furnished house on the outskirts of St. Joseph. In his house the police found pistols and machine guns as well as bonds stolen from a Jefferson, Wis., bank.

Important Witness

Among the witnesses summoned for the hearing which followed Burke's plea was Forrest Kool, a Berrien county farmer. It was Kool's automobile which figured in the accident about which Patrolman Skelly sought to question Burke.

TILBY SMITH AGAIN ON TRIAL FOR LIFE

Ashtabula Trucker, Alleged Wife Slayer, Fights To Escape Chair.

By The Associated Press

JEFFERSON, O., April 27—Charged with slaying his wife so that he might continue a romance with a housemaid, Tilby L. Smith, 27-year-old Ashtabula trucker, was called to stand trial for his life a second time today.

Common Pleas Judge Charles A. Sargent will be the sole judge of Smith's fate, the defendant having waived a jury trial. In Smith's first trial last July, Judge Sargent refused to hear the case without a jury. Smith was convicted and sentenced to die in the electric chair, but won a new trial from the supreme court because he was not allowed to waive the jury trial.

Smith, the state charges, drove his wife, Clara, to a lonely road six miles south of Ashtabula, where she was shot while holding their two-year-old son on her lap.

Mrs. Maude Lowther with whom Smith is alleged to have carried on a brief love affair, was waiting in ambush and fired the fatal shots, the prosecution claims. She is to be tried after Smith's case is disposed of.

An insanity defense was offered for Smith, who, his attorneys assert, has the mind of an eight-year-old child.

Report Lists Both Branches as Generally Favoring Legalizing of Beer.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 27—Modification of the prohibition law to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer is seen as a possibility at the next session of congres by labor's national committee for modification of the Volstead act.

A report of the committee, based on a congressional survey, asserts there are only 17 "die-hard" prohibitionists in the senate and 43 in the house of representatives and that "victory is in sight if those who have voluntarily enlisted in this cause will make their wishes known to the senators and congressmen from their states."

Woll Prepares Report

The report was prepared by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and I. M. Ornburn, president of the Cigarmakers' International Union, for submission today to the national conference of organized labor's anti-prohibition group.

"Of the 96 members of the United States senate," the report states, "34 are willing to vote for modification of the Volstead act permitting the lawful manufacture and sale of beer and light wines; 15 believe that beer is non-intoxicating, but claim they are not justified in voting to change the present legislation; 12 admit that a majority of the people of their states are producers or consumers of illicit liquors, but claim that the organized church vote is of so much importance that they do not feel it

TEMPERATURE HITS LOW OF 29 DEGREES

Further Loss Expected Tonight as Cold Is Predicted To Continue.

RELIEF IS DUE TUESDAY

High Wind Brings Sleet, Rain and Snow Squalls Intermittently.

Marion county's early fruit crop was destroyed last night when a heavy frost accompanied a drop in temperature of three degrees below freezing.

What little fruit escaped last night is expected to be added to the heavy damage tonight when another heavy frost is forecast by the state weather bureau. Fair and continued cold tonight has been forecast.

Winds of high velocity blew in a large plate glass window at the W. P. Moore & Co., meat market at 160 North Main street at 2.30 p. m. yesterday, causing damage of approximately $150.

Ice was reported frozen nearly an inch thick in bird baths and other exposed quantities of water in the city yesterday.

Tuesday is expected to see relief from the low temperatures which have prevailed in Marion county for almost a week. The weatherman has predicted rising temperature in this section.

Variety was the keynote of the weatherman's wares over the weekend. Marion county was lashed intermittently Sunday with high winds, sleet, hail, rain and snow. The thermometer reached a high point of 53 degrees Sunday while the low point recorded last night was 29 degrees. A year ago the mercury reached a high of 63 degrees and a low of 29.

A check of Marion county fruit farms showed that all the peach and plum trees in blossom were destroyed. The early cherry crop was damaged. Currants and gooseberries also were damaged. No damage was reported to late cherries and the apple crop.

Damage General

The damage to the fruit crop was general throughout the state. The weather bureau, according to Associated Press reports, said that fruit in northern Ohio escaped damage, although fear was expressed for unprotected fruit in the remainder of the state.

Press dispatches reported six persons injured and some property damage in Ohio from the high winds. A squall which struck the Akron municipal airport razed a concession booth, blew visitors off their feet and sent six persons to hospitals. A high wind loosened a large plank moored to the flagstaff cable on a hangar, tearing a portion of about 20 feet in diameter from the roof. A number of trees were blown down in Cleveland.

Rain and windstorms raked the Atlantic seaboard over the weekend. The antenna tuning house of the National Broadcasting Co. at Bellmore, Long Island, and a house were struck by lightning during the storm Sunday. Fair but colder weather was forecast for the east today.

The mercury bounced around the 40-degree mark around Chicago today.

FAMILY GATHERS FOR ANNIVERSARY

Dinner Honors Golden Wedding Celebration for Galion Couple.

Special to The Star

GALION, April 27—A family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam G. Meister of 904 South Market street, yesterday, celebrated the golden wedding anniversary of the host and hostess. The dinner was arranged as a surprise in honor of the celebrants.

Following the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Meister were presented a purse of gold and a golden basket filled with yellow roses.

On April 24, 1881, Adam G. Meister and Margaret Boehm were united in marriage at Gadernheim, Hessen Darmstadt, Germany, by Rev. Centgraf. They departed shortly after their marriage for America and on May 26 of the same year landed in New York City, coming from there to Galion where they resided for a brief time at the home of John Boehm, Sr. A few years later they built their present home at 904 South Market street where they have resided ever since.

To this union was born five children: Mrs. H. M. Curfman, Galion; William Meister, Canton; Mrs. George Hannewald, Mansfield; Mrs. Howard Self, Galion, and Mrs. E. G. Ackerman, Coldwater. All of them are living and were able to celebrate with their parents, together with eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mr. Meister has followed the trade of cabinetmaker ever since his arrival in America, having learned his craft in Germany. The older acquaintances will remember the Herbold Furniture factory, the Organ factory and the Lounge factory where Mr. Meister spent the first years of labor in this country. He has a distinction which few are privileged to enjoy in this, that he has worked continuously at the same mill, the Galion Lumber company, for 46 years, having served three owners and witnessed the destruction of the mill by fire on two occasions and its subsequent rebuilding. Mr. Meister still is in excellent health and is able to be about his work as foreman at this mill at the present time.

TRIBE HANDED FIRST PLACE IN AMERICAN BY MISPLAYS OF N. Y.

Cold Curtails Major Portion of Big League Play; Root Wins Third.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

As if it wasn't bad enough to lose three of his best outfielders, including Babe Ruth, within a week's time, something even worse has arisen to worry Joe McCarthy. His New York Yankees have taken to lapsing mentally in the pinches.

As the result of two unintelligent gestures over the week-end, the Yankees lost the same number of ball games and dropped out of first place in the American league. The Cleveland Indians, rained out both days, took over the top without a struggle.

McCarthy's boys pulled the first one Saturday, when Chapman became confused on where to toss the ball at a vital point in the tenth inning and didn't make up his mind until after the Red Sox had scored the winning run.

But that was scarcely anything compared to the rare skit given by Lou Gehrig and Lyn Lary yesterday at Washington. Lary was on base when Lou hit one to center. Lary, rounding third, looked back in time to see the ball bounce back into a fielder's hands, thought it had been caught for the third out and headed for the dugout. Before they could steer him back on the base path, Gehrig passed by with a fine burst of speed and crossed the plate. There went two runs, the exact margin by which the Senators eventually won, 9 to 7.

Dusty Cooke joined the New York hospital squad when he fell going after Bluege's homer in the third inning, displacing his collar bone.

In the day's only other American league engagement, Detroit scored its fourth straight victory at the expense of Chicago, 8 to 4.

Sorrell and Sullivan allowed the White Sox only three hits, while the Tigers mauled three Chicago courvers for 11 including Stone's fifth home run of the year.

Two sparkling mound performances flecked a curtailed card in the National league. Heine Meine gave only four hits in pitching Pittsburgh to a 1 to 0 triumph over St. Louis. It was the season's second defeat for the champion Cardinals and their first shutout.

Charley Root, veteran Chicago righthander, started, finished and won his third straight game in downing Cincinnati, 3 to 1. Rogers Hornsby again led his team's offense with three hits in five trips.

Popularity of baseball among Missouri colleges is on the wane, a recent survey disclosed. Bad weather and conficts with track are given as causes.

May Have Missed Some Shots, but Not Likely

By The Associated Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 27—If you think this game of billiards isn't full of possibilities for a lifetime of attention, just read what Prof. Frank G. Dickinson of the University of Illinois, has figured out.

Prof. Dickinson, originator of the football rating system which bears his name, loves numbers, and billiards is full of them.

For instance, there are possibilities for a mere 63,000,000,000,000 different shots. If one tried to make all of them he couldn't do it working day and night, in 2,000,000,000 years. According to Prof. Dickinson's figures, there are 6,325 inches of usable surface on a championship table. If the table were lined off into one-eighth inch blocks and the balls were grouped in every possible combination, there would be more than 63,000,000,000,000 arrangements.

The professor says that the problem may be considerably simplified by lining the table off in one-inch blocks, then it would leave only 243,000,000,000 combinations.

STEPPING UP

Harold Schumacher (above), 20, can boast of being one of the few players in major leagues to step from college to a diamond in fast company. Last year he was a member of the varsity team of Milligan college; now he is the pitching hope of the New York Giants. (Lower), the palm ball as Schumacher demonstrates how he holds the pill for a change of pace.

EPWORTH CLUB SIGNS NEW MEN FOR RACE IN S. S. SOFTBALL LOOP

Despite Added Players Bishops Appear Doomed to Second Division Post.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

LET'S hope they're not as bad as last year seems to be the sentiment expressed when one speaks of the Epworth Bishops (formerly the Epworth Juniors.) Last season the Bishops represented just about the worst possible in No. 1 league recreation baseball.

Followers of the Bishops are hoping to witness a rejuvenation of the Epworth entry this year and it isn't likely they will be altogether disappointed. The Bishop outfit at present does not look like the strongest team in the league but neither does it appear to be so woefully ineffective as last season.

New Men in Lineup

The numerous beatings absorbed by the Bishops last season convinced Manager Jim Lingo of one fact—if his team was going to continue to compete in the faster Sunday school league he would have to dig up some new talent. The result is the Bishops have added several new players to the team's roster for competition this season.

Despite the addition of the new men the Methodists are going to face the season's opener on May 12 with some positions in need of strengthening. First class outfielders are scarce and at present there is only one pitcher on the squad worthy of the name. Another hurler will be added soon and he may add a lot of power to the mound staff.

Infield Bolstered

There is no doubt the Epworth infield has been bolstered considerably. Harold Fetter has been secured to take over the third base post which will allow Roush to go back to his natural position at short. A young player, Harold Hinamon, has been delegated to cover the Keystone bag and promises to do a better job of it than has been done for a coupe of years. Bud Cram, the city's leading first baseman, will again be on the initial bag.

Roush was hailed last year as one of the coming infielders of the city and he is almost certain to live up to advance notices. Fetter covers third well although inclined to let loose a wild heave occasionally.

Mautz Showing Well

Eddie Mautz in the box and George Hinklin or Harold Carroll behind the bat form the battery prospects for the season. Mautz is showing increased ability on the mound this year and Hinklin is an improvement over the Bishop receiver of last season. Carroll also has shown ability behind the plate. The biggest drawback to the battery corps is the lack of a relief hurler for Mautz. This weakness is certain to be brought out quite forcibly before the season is completed.

The Bishop outfield this season is not going to be one which will cause any loud hurrahs to emerge from the throats of Epworth backers. Harold Henry in left field, Jimmy Lingo in center and Kirkpatrick in right will probably get the starting call. None of the three can be classed as better than average players.

MIAMI LEADS

Co-Champion of 1930 Buckeye Races Humbles Bobcat Nine 6-5

By International News Service

OXFORD, O., April 27 — Miami, co-champion in Buckeye conference baseball last season, was out in front in the 1931 race today.

Ohio university, which fell before the Miami team here Saturday, 6 to 5, dropped into a tie with the Cincinnati Bearcats as a result of the loss.

Ohio was responsible for Cincy's first defeat but while Ohio was being humbled by Miami Saturday the Bearcats rallied and licked Ohio Wesleyan, also by a 6 to 5 score, in 10 innings.

Ohio and Cincinnati now have each won one and lost one. Miami, with only one game played, has a perfect record.

PRACTICE GAME BOOKED

The Epworth Bishops' recreation ball team is scheduled to meet the Lutherans today at 6 p. m. on the Garfield park diamond. Tuesday at 6 p. m. the Bishops will tackle the United Brethren nine at Garfield. The Methodists also have a practice scheduled for the Lincoln park diamond Friday, May 1. The opponent for this game has not been named. The Kappas will furnish the opposition for a practice game May 4 at Lincoln park.

Jo Massey, Macon, Ga., amateur golfer, picks a rainy day to test his ability to enter a tournament.

The fall occurred last night while he was talking to Arthur Reinhart, who said Jones appeared to lose his balance, falling backward to an alley below.

BREWERS HAMMER 4 COLUMBUS PITCHERS TO WIN GAME, 21-9

Red Birds Take Second Beating from St. Paul; Toledo Loses, 6-5.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 27—The individual and collective batting averages of the St. Paul Saints were in an extremely healthy condition today, due to an outburst of .490 hitting against Columbus yesterday.

The Saints belted four Red Bird hurlers for 26 assorted hits and a 21 to 9 victory to even their series yesterday. The assault was headed by Oscar Roettger who connected for a home run and four singles in seven times at bat, while Jack Saltzgaver came up with two homers and a double.

Another season mark was set at Toledo, where Minneapolis defeated the Mud Hens, 6 to 5. Between two hail storms, rain and winds, the Millers and hens struggled through 15 innings, the longest contest of the young campaign, before a decision was reached.

Bob Weiland, former Chicago White Sox southpaw, held the walloping Milwaukee Brewers to eight hits and Louisville scored a 7 to 4 victory.

Kansas City and Indianapolis divided a double header, the Blues taking the first game, 12 to 5, and the Indians getting a 4 to 3 decision in the six-inning afterpiece which was called in observance of the Sunday 6 o'clock law.

YANK SLUGGER QUITS HOSPITAL FOR HOME

Babe Ruth Likely To Be Out of Lineup Another Two Weeks.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 27—Babe Ruth, who left home last Tuesday full of vigor, went home last night in a wheel chair.

The Babe was discharged from the hospital in Boston yesterday full of optimism about getting back into the game. He wanted to get a crack at the Athletics this week, he said. But by the time he completed the five hour ride to New York, the predictions of the physician who attended him, Dr. Francis C. Newton, that the Babe would be out of action two weeks appeared more fully justified. The Babe appeared tired. He felt "fine" except for his injured leg, he said, but he did not protest when Mrs. Ruth answered "two weeks" to all questions about how long he would be out of the game.

The Babe went home as soon as he arrived.

One of the first things the Babe heard after his arrival was that his substitute, Dusty Cooke, had been injured at Washington.

He commented, "good night."

INTEREST GROWS IN OHIO TRACK RELAYS

Annual Event Expected To Draw Cream of Collegiate Cinder Stars.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., April 27—Out at Ohio stadium here today they started putting up the flags and brushing off the seats for the opening Friday of that great big athletic spectacle of the season—the eighth annual Ohio relays.

It's the "cleanup" position relay event this year, batting in fourth place, behind Illinois, Drake and Penn, and that fact has convinced the men handling the publicity, that the Ohio contest will attract all the winners and none of the cannon fodder.

Ohio State will enter 34 men in its own relays here this week and into that squad today eyes of the student body peered anxiously in the hope that somebody like George Simpson might be waiting, disguised, for a sensational debut before his home folks.

Simpson is out in Japan now and the Ohio hope against Eddie Tolan, the Michigan Negro dasher whom they have called "the midnight express," is not an Ohio starter, but De Armond Huston, of Denison, who once clipped off the century in 9.6 seconds.

Lamb of Lehigh, who beat Hutson Saturday, won't be here, probably assuring a mid-west battle in the sprints. Glass of Oklahoma A. & M., who beat Tolan at the Drake relays while Hutson was losing to Lamb, also is not expected to enter.

The other bug battle will engage Lee Sentman, Illinois' supposed king of the hurdlers, and Jack Keller, lanky Ohio State sophomore.

Sentman has not found his stride in outdoor meets and Keller, who has been breaking local records recklessly, was not quite able to beat Devoe of Yale, at the Penn meet.

Two of the country's greatest vaulters—Tommy Warne of Northwestern, and Verne McDermont of Illinois—also will be here.

A two-mile relay race between Notre Dame and the Buckeyes will be one of the principal team events. The Buck win at Penn was a reason for confidence about the result here today.

Gentlemen:
I welcome this opportunity to put on record the benefits I have enjoyed from using ZZZ tablets purchased at your drugstore.
About three years ago last September, my physician advised me that my complication of gall, liver and appendix ailments had reached a point that my only hope for recovery rested with the success of a serious abdominal operation. His examinations showed my physical condition to be such that the hope of a successful operation appeared extremely doubtful
With this discouraging prospect before me, I tried taking ZZZ tablets and have continued them until this time. I feel that I am completely cured of all my gall and liver ailments and am ready to verify this letter at any time and recommend your remedy to any who may inquire
Yours very truly,
(Signed)

DECLINE HITS BROAD LIST

Suspension of Investment House Leads to Fresh Deflation of Stock.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 27—The deflation of share values received fresh impetus from the suspension of a prominent Philadelphia investment house today.

The stock market pointed upward for a few minutes in the initial transactions, with Continental Shares, Inc., and related isues rising briskly, in response to the announced reorganization of the management of Continental. Large-scale liquidation soon appeared. However, and although there was a brief let-up after announcement of the West & Co. suspension, fresh selling soon swept the market.

Oils dropped sharply. Standard of New Jersey tumbled three points to a new low price since 1924. Issues off two to four points included Standard of California. Texas Corp., Mexican Seaboard and Houston Oil. Steels also plunged downward. U. S. Steel dropping three points to still another minimum level since 1927.

Miscellaneous issues losing two to five included American Can, American Telephone, Case, Johns Manville, Union Carbide, DuPont, Allied Chemical, Paramount, Nash Motor, Westinghouse, Eastman, Western Union and others. Only moderate losses appeared in General Motors, General Electric and North American. The decline, however, was one of the broadest since December.

One of the more encouraging developments of the day in world finance was the budget message of Philip Snowden, chancellor of the British exchequer. Mr. Snowden spoke hopefully of the general trade outlook, and proposed only temporary expedients to tide over the exchequer pending the arrival of better times.

FROST REPORTS BOOST WHEAT

Corn, However, Hits New Low After General Advance at Opening.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 27—Wheat scored early advances today after a wavering start, but corn touched new bottom levels. Upturns in wheat were influenced by relative firmness of Liverpool quotations and by frost reports from Kansas Missouri and Nebraska. Opening at ⅛ cents off to ⅛ up wheat later gained all around. Corn started at ½ decline to ½ advance and subsequently underwent a general sag.

Corn weakness, as a result of persistent liquidating sales by holders of May contracts, turned wheat downward at times and more than wiped out early gains.

Numerous stop-loss orders in corn were forced into execution and the market soon dropped about 2 cents a bushel, with prices down to an equal with those current in 1921. Contributing to corn weakness were reports of an immense surplus of corn in Argentina with no adequate European outlet, but an Argentine government estimate of 1931 corn production was much lower than private estimates.

Stubborn resistance to declines showed itself in wheat, but less so after announcement of another stock market failure. Dearth of moisture in spring wheat territory continued. Advices were also received that Australia had effected sales of 54,000,000 bushels of wheat to the Orient, leaving an Australian exportable surplus of only 28,000,000 bushels. An opposite influence, however, was that the amount of wheat on ocean passage showed a material increase, compared with both last week and last year. Oats followed wheat rather than corn.

Provisions were steady, upheld by a rise in hog values.

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

"CITY OF WHITE NIGHT," by Nikolai Gubsky is an old fashioned story of two Russian girls, Kydia and Katya, both loved by a strong-fisted Russian named Kanshin.

The action takes place under the rule of the czar during the period when Rasputin began to influence the Russian court. These Russian young people do a little work and a great deal of talking.

A gentleman named Tavrov is very much in the picture and is expected to lend a great deal of color to it. There are many plans laid which fail to materialize and the story moves to a tragic end in which all the characters seem to go down in defeat together.

Walpole Writes of London

PICADILLY CIRCUS is chosen as the setting by Hugh Walpole for his new novel, "Above the Dark Tumult." His hero is Richard Gunn, hungry and in need of a haircut. He is down to his last half-crown or 60 cents. Glancing into a pocket volume of "Don Quixote" he finds an omen which decides him to visit a barber.

While he is waiting in the barber's shop there is a fight. Escaping he encounters a familiar face. It is that of a nasty, mean man who had betrayed three acquaintances of Gunn to the police and caused their conviction as burglars. The villain, Pengelly, is a blackmailer, it develops. The thrills continue when all get together again, in a theater balcony around the corner and on a roof.

News Room Story Is Dutton Mystery

HENRY C BECK is state editor of the Camden, N. J., Courier-Post as well as music critic, and has written out of his newspaper life, a smashing tale of murder with the city room for a background. His "Murder in the News Room" is the Dutton clue mystery for April. Mr. Beck reports that he holds the record for the world's longest telephone call, from 1:30 p. m. to 6:20 with questions and answers on an inquest. He has been district reporter, rewrite and copy desk man, has tapped out features and done all the other odd jobs which fall to the lot of the average newspaperman. Incidentally the managing editor of his mystery novel is touted as the wickedest managing editor who ever hired and fired a reporter.

Parisian Writes of Underworld

ALFRED MORAIN, Paris prefect of police and late head of the French department of criminal investigation, has laid aside his departmental perplexities long enough to write a book and his achievement is true story action that is said to put mystery writers to shame. He has chosen to call his book "The Underworld of Paris," and the publishers are E. P. Dutton & Co.

The most grewsome story of the lot is of one Landru, who turns out to be a perfect Bluebeard and keeps the prefecture in alarm for years.

Morain tells of Mari Hari with wartime spyland as a setting. He calmly unmasks this dancer-courtesan's clever pose as a fugitive devotee from the Indian temple of Siva and exposes her as the abandoned wife of a Dutch army officer who rose through sheer pluck and personality to be a European darling; but he can not conceal his frank admiration for the supreme courage and calm with which she faced the firing squad that cold, gray dawn of October 15, 1917, eyes unbandaged, the cord at her waist not even tied to the execution post.

Popular Writer Deserts Mysteries

IN "The Four-Flusher," Elizabeth Jordan returns to the straight novel after five or six years of tremendously successful mystery stories. Beginning easily, casually and with characteristic humor the author presents a situation which deepens and strengthens until it becomes more dramatic than most mystery tales.

The woman is the wife of a mild and inoffensive business man, the mother of a spoiled, charming, irrepressible son, and a magnificent creation.

She is a woman whose every action brings her nearer to the edge of the precipice toward which with unconscious and colossal egotism she is winging herself and her family. Surrounded by her adoring husband and adored son, by her conventional social secretary, her unconventional niece and her hordes of associates, admirers and creditors, this woman generates currents of dramatic potentiality which eventually recoil on her head with furious climactic force.

CONNECTICUT GIRL VICTIM OF SLAYING

Body of Farmer's Daughter Found Following Banquet and Dance.

By The Associated Press

HAMDEN, Conn., April 27—The slaying of Emily Kirk, 21-year-old daughter of a Hamden farmer, remained unsolved today as police sought a motive for the brutal killing.

Her body was found in a thicket yesterday. There were four bullet wounds in the head and arms. The head was badly mutilated and a bloodstained rock lay nearby. Medical examiners after an autopsy said they believed the girl had been criminally assaulted.

Miss Kirk was last seen alive Saturday night stepping from a fire station in an isolated section. The station had been used that night for a banquet and dance. She had been serving as a waitress at the banquet and left the hall to get her party dress from her automobile.

She failed to return and after an hour's absence her parents became alarmed and notified the police. The girl's body was found 1,000 yards from the fire station.

Three strange men, reported acting suspiciously Saturday night, were sought for questioning.

Plenty of Activity and Entertainment in Hollywood Although Scandal Is Lacking

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see as I prowl from here to there. Every time I get a new Picture finished why I kinder feel the itch to get out to some new place or make some sort of a little trip. Well away a couple of weeks ago, we had finished "As young as you feel," based on George Ade's old play "Father and the Boys." I was going to take a little trip off down in Central America, and then they kept me at home for fear there might be some re-take on it. You know when we get one made we then take them out and show em, sometimes at a couple of different towns to see if they are fit to release, and sometimes we have to change something or make some new Scenes. So I couldent get away on my trip.

The way I had it planned I would have been in Managua, Nicaragua on the day after the quake, was going to stop over and see what the Marines was doing down there, and I would have been on the spot for quite a little news, for they sure have had it tough down there. Well we took the thing out and tried it in San Bernidino, Cal., and the customers giggled quite a bit, so that let me get away. They said, the Director and the Studio Officials that they dident think we could make it any worse if we tried, so I jumped on the old Aerial Rattler, and left from there. Honest if people knew how fast and comfortable and safe it is on a Plane they would never travel any other way.

California Fails to Deliver

I left Los Angeles from over in San Fernando valley on the American Airways just at daybreak on Easter morning. They were having Easter sunrise services in the Hollywood Bowl. California goes in great for that Gag. Well it was so misty and foggy this morning, they might have got up before daylight and parked two miles away from the place. For I never saw as many cars in one place in my life. But they never had any sunrise service, for no one but an Aerial Magician could have told when the sun did rise on that day. Old California fell down on em. It was so misty and foggy that we dident think we could get away, but these Planes all have radio now, so they got word that there was fine weather all along the line.

You know this Radio had made it mighty fine to find out about whats ahead. You see its never the weather you take off in its the weather where you have to go through after you take off. I remember one trip on our late tour with Captain Frank Hawkes when we took off one day in a snow storm in New Mexico when you just couldent see a thing, not two hundred feet, and it was that way flying blind for the next hour, but he had heard before that it was clear in Albequrque where we were going. So its how is the weather ahead of you more than how it is where you are.

Hollywood Improvements

Well the Sunrise bunch dident get much started that day I am afraid. You know California can get more people into something free than any place on earth. Course that particular thing was a very meritorious cause, and is a good idea if you live in a country where you can depend on the weather. This thing is a just a big boxed-in Canyon, that they call the Bowl, and they have had some mighty fine things there. Its a sort of a Moses on the Mount idea. We out in Hollywood take all the Bible things and improve on em, make em bigger. Now Moses when he read his Amendments dident have thousands of cars parked around, and he dident advertise how many he could seat on the sage brush on the hillside. But we did out there. We just dont go in for little things.

Now take the Lords supper that has never interested our Movie producers, for there was not enough Guests there. It was a Stag affair, and that wouldent mean much to the producers. We did however put on the Prodigal Sons return, course we changed the name on account of that one not being very well known and Hollywood called the Story, "Sonnyboy returns to his first love," and the place they had him return to was bigger than all Judea combined. We just do em big out that way, and the eastern Tourist out there expect it. California cant do anything natural, they wont believe it.

Things Have Changed

But its a great old place, and we get as much fun out of it as if we believed it all ourselves. Speaking of services and religious gatherings why we been missing Aimee lately. She is away prowling around some place, and we cant hardly figure her out. Her Church is running, but it without Aimee is like the modern Girl without her lip stick, it just aint her at all. With Aimee away for all this stretch, and Clara Bow on her best behavior and me behaving myself, why there just is not much scandal out there at all. Doug Fairbanks is over in India getting even with some India Royalty that visited him one time. He is supposed to be shooting Tigers, but anybody that knows Doug knows that he never hunted in his life, he never shot anything, but if he can come back with some pictures with the right foot up on the neck of a dead Tiger or Elephant why it will be all right.

Mary is kinder ranting around. There is some club out there called the Mayfair, that has some sort of a shindig every week, and they put on fights, I mean impromptu fights, people get mad at each other after they get there, and they always open and close their dance with a fight. Well we have all been shocked to death to find Mary among, (Not the fighters) but among the guests, she has a ringside table at every public brawl they have. Doug has got to come home and put her to work, keep her out of devilment.

City Completes Work on City Lot Sidewalk.

The building of the new sidewalk and approach on the Church street side of the city parking lot has been completed and workmen under the direction of Service Director D. J. Harlow were removing brick from low spots on Church street this morning preparatory to bringing them to the street level.

In order to avoid promiscuous driving over the approach, entrance lines will be painted on the concrete, the service director said this morning. IN MEMORY OF MY MOTHER

"I cannot say, and I will not say
That she is dead—she is just away!
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
She has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers there.
And you, oh you, who wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return—
Think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here;
Mild and gentle as she was brave—
When the sweetest love of her life she gave
To the simple things;—Where the violets grew
True as the eyes they were likened to.
The touches of her hands have strayed
As reverently as her lips have prayed;
Think of her still as the same, I say:
She is not dead—She is just away."
—Mrs. Garnet Frush.

Every CAMEL Package Now a Tiny Humidor
Switch over for just one day then quit Camels, if you can

All regular Camel smokers have noticed a significant change in the Camel package. Now their favorite cigarettes come air-sealed in moisture-proof Cellophane.

An improvement in appearance, true, but the reason for this change that cost $2,000,000 was not mere looks.

It was done to protect the fine mild quality of Camels until they reach the smoker.

The best tobacco loses much of its rich flavor and aroma when its natural moisture content is lost through scorching or evaporation.

That's why we have made every Camel package a tiny humidor—so that you may always be sure of getting Camels in fresh mild condition.

Camels are wrapped only in moisture-proof Cellophane with an air-seal.

Try a package today and revel in the luxury of a really fresh cigarette.

Factory-fresh Camels are air-sealed in the new Sanitary Package which keeps the dust and germs out and keeps the flavor in.

It is peppery dust and harsh dry tobacco that are unkind to a smoker's throat.

We vacuum-clean away the dust and keep the natural moisture in by the exclusive Humidor Pack.

Make the switch to Camels for just one day, then leave them — if you can.

It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

Hoover Caught in Rain That Halts Celebration

President and Wife Drenched in Downpour at Anniversary Ceremony in Virginia; Party Seeks Shelter in Railroad Station.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 27—President Hoover's third consecutive weekend away from the White House gave him an experience he probably will not forget soon. He cruised for about 36 hours on the waters of the Potomac and Chesapeake bay and was thoroughly drenched in a rain that broke up a celebration climaxing the trip. The President and his official party left Washington Saturday afternoon for Cape Henry, Va., to participate in ceremonies commemorating the three hundred and twenty-fourth anniversary of the landing of English colonists. From the capital to Little Creek inlet he rode aboard the Sequoia, commerce department inspection boat.

Then he took a train for the remaining few miles to Cape Henry, meeting Governor Pollard of Virginia, and others.

As Bishop A. C. Thompson, of the Episcopal diocese of southern Virginia, began the opening prayer, a torrential rainstorm burst. Hatless, the President sought shelter beneath a canvas but the wind drove the water under the covering.

Then the group went into the railroad station about a quarter of a mile away and had tea. Mrs. Hoover was just as wet as her husband.

After Governor Pollard joined others for the tea at the station, efforts were made to take the Presidential party back to Little Creek inlet by automobile, but it took some time to gather the scattered members. Lawrence Ritchie, a secretary to the President, and naval and military aides got a little wetter. Bishop Thompson, whose soaked robes clung to him, joined in the laughter and chatting.

Finally, though, the party was rounded up. A short time later the 18-hour boat trip back to the capital began.

The President's boat, returning from Cape Henry, docked at 9 a. m. eastern standard time, and he went immediately to his office where a number of engagements awaited him.

A stalk of rhubarb 18 inches long and six inches in circumference was grown by A. H. Walker of Pittsburg, Kas.

FEDERAL CRIME STATISTICS HIT

Wickersham Commission Says Figures Used To Help Get Appropriations.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 27 — The Wickersham commission has found that some government bureaus use as a basis for criminality statistics things that will help them make the "most favorable showing possible" when they ask congress for money.

This assertion was included in the commission's third report to President Hoover since it began work nearly two years ago. The present methods of compiling statistics on criminality were condemned as inadequate, often nonexistent and sometimes involving a "serious abuse."

Covers 200 Pages

All 11 commission members signed the 200-page document, prepared under the direction of Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard law school.

One government report which drew strong criticism was that published monthly by the justice department's investigation bureau.

"It requires no great study of these reports," the commission said, "to perceive a number of weaknesses which should impose a more cautious promulgating of them. The basic reports are made by persons and under conditions which involve varying degrees of guarantee of their accuracy and reliability."

The commission asserted: "It is not only important to provide criminal statistics, it is quite as important to see to it that misleading information is not sent out under official auspices and of the government."

Evidence of Abuse

"It takes but little experience of such criminal statistics as we have," the report added, "in order to convince that a serious abuse exists in compiling them as a basis for requesting appropriations or for justifying the existence of or urging expanded powers and equipment for the agency in question rather than for the purposes which criminal statistics are designed to further.

"The source of difficulty, when the matter is looked into, almost always proves to be desire of the bureau in question to make for itself the most favorable showing possible."

OHIO PICTURE IS ROMANTIC FARCE

"God's Gift to Women" at the Ohio tonight and Tuesday is a romantic farce, light, loving and entertaining. Frank Fay is a delightful twentieth Don Juan, a devil with the ladies. Six lovely girls lend their beauty to the play.

Laura LaPlante is his Waterloo. She piques his interest but snubs and flaunts him when she learns of the number of love affairs he keeps going without permanent entanglements. That starts things moving. His interest in her increases to the point that he hires himself to her father as a butler, only to be ejected when he is discovered. By now she, like all the other women, is violently in love with him. His old loves turn up at the wrong times and Miss LaPlante is heartbroken.

Her father agrees to their marriage on the condition that he gives up all women, goes through a six-month probation and consults a doctor. The doctor tells him that his heart is so bad that one more kiss will kill him. There's a funny sequence, when learning that Miss LaPlante is sailing for America and wishes him to give her one last kiss, he makes arrangements for his funeral before going to the boat. The play ends as all Don Juan plays do, but Fay has a few terrible moments before he finds out the real ruth of the doctor's diagnosis.

A comedy and newsreel complete the bill.

"GUN SMOKE" WITH MARY BRIAN

Comedy and thrills run riot in "Gun Smoke" at the Marion tonight and Tuesday. Louise Fazenda and Eugene Pallette afford the comedy and the romance is left to Richard Arlen and Mary Brian. William Boyd is the villian.

Mary owns a ranch. Boyd and his gang of fellow criminals are forced to leave a big city because their activities have made it too hot for them and go west, establishing themselves as capitalists, with the hospitality of Mary's ranch extended to them. She is disgusted that Arlen is nothing more than a leader of a gang of wild mustang hunters when he might have gone to the city and become a big business man like Boyd. Arlen and his cronie, Pallette, are the only two who suspect that Boyd is not what he poses to be.

Discovery of a vein of gold on Mary's property turns Boyd to his old criminal ways, and [illegible] Mary, Louise and the [illegible] men, prisoners. A [illegible] by Arlen and [illegible] end of it [illegible] Louise [illegible] when [illegible]

FARM INCOME OUTLOOK GOOD

Research Director Sees Prospects of Increase in Ohio This Year.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 27.—The income from Ohio farmers should be much larger this year, because the weather is more favorable for crop production and an increasing number of indications point toward higher prices, according to Carl J. West, research director for the Ohio Farm Bureau.

Ohio's wheat crop is reported at the best for a number of years, said West. The recent estimate of 35,000 bushels of wheat is 8,000,000 bushels more than the average for the years 1928-1929. Scarcely a poor field of wheat is to be observed at any place in the state. There is a thick growth of plants, and the development is average or better for this early date.

Recent Rains Help

Recent rains have supplied enough moisture to start the corn crop. Much plowing was done last fall and winter, and the soil is in excellent condition for planting. There may still be some deficiency in sub-soil moisture, but taken as a whole, the outlook is very favorable for a corn crop.

Oat seeding should be promising in view of the general rains that have recently occurred. Ohio farmers are looking more and more upon oats as a feed crop rather than a cash crop.

Wheat prices have everything to gain by any changes in the economic situation. There will probably be a reduction in spring wheat acreage, because of present low prices and because of difficulties in financing. The same condition may hold in Canada and in other spring wheat areas of the world.

Hog prices may not greatly exceed the average for the year now closing, but Ohio farmers will have more to feed to hogs than last year, and will probably sell a larger number of animals.

The future for milk price is still uncertain.

Ohio Dairy Problem

Over production comes very easily in the dairy business in Ohio. To what extent we shall see higher prices is a difficult matter to estimate, but it does seem fairly certain that Ohio dairymen will produce a larger percentage of feed this summer, so that the net income may be larger, and probably the gross income will exceed that for the year 1930.

Without much doubt egg prices and poultry prices will be about the levels for the last 12 months. For practically every product produced by Ohio farmers there is an even chance or better for a large return this year. Costs will not be any higher, and in many instances will be lower. Altogether the outlook is distinctly encouraging.

Daily Proverb—"Trust not a woman when she weepeth, for it is her nature to weep when she wanteth her will."

Now Stromboli is in eruption. Old Mother Nature must be maintaining a card index thus to keep her vents working so regularly in rotation.

The wires sent from Los Angeles frankly termed last week's disturbance out there an earthquake, from which it may be deduced that it wasn't so much of a convulsion of nature.

Field Marshal Sir Edmund Allenby warns that the next war will mean the end of civilization. Looks reasonable. There isn't so much civilization left, as it is, as the result of the last one.

The pastor out in Kansas City, Missouri, sued for $5,000 damages on the charge of having stolen a kiss from a woman of that place, was cleared by the jury. Naturally. How could twelve citizens of any community be expected to stand for an attempt like that to boost the price of a stolen caress?

Sitting in San Francisco, Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan one day recently ruled that, although liquor may be seized illegally, it may be held by the government; which, come to think of it, is pretty good sense. Why should the government give up that which the law of the land says has no legal existence?

Paris, the one European capital which has imposed anything of the kind, has announced the abolition of her "tax de sejour." The gay French capital has had the fact brought home to her that for every visitor who entered the city and paid the tax she kept two or three visitors away.

One reason why the Paraguayans didn't jubilate to any great extent over the ending of the revolution down there may have been that it was over before the most of them knew that it had started.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, urges that state governments be reorganized and made less cumbersome. What chance is there for that when the inevitable result would be to lose a lot of minor political patriots their jobs?

The captain of the coast guard at Mineola, Long Island, testified, and his story was confirmed by one of his men, that he had been offered a bribe of $50,000 to permit the running in of liquor. In this particular case the offer was turned down, but it is by just such bribes that the corruption of our law enforcement agencies throughout the land is being worked.

One day last week the New York police seized $500,000 worth of morphine brought over in packing cases on the Hamburg-American liner, Milwaukee. That made $2,000,000 worth of dope seized by customs agents and police in thirty days. One can figure that the drug habit must be making awful strides in this country when smugglers attempt to bring the stuff in in anywhere from a half to a million dollars' worth at a time.

Not a Popular Proposal.

The proposal to tax motor vehicles in Ohio on a basis of weight rather than horsepower is a fumbling attempt to sovle the automobile taxation problem. The tax would not prove popular or equitable in practice.

First of all, the weight-tax proposal would eliminate personal property taxation on automobiles, thereby diverting needed local revenue to the state. Thousands of people who own no taxable property other than their automobiles would be relieved entirely of their proper responsibility of sharing the tax burden of their communities. This should not be.

The weight-tax would not be an equitable type of automobile taxation, as is claimed by its proponents. It would place a disproportionate burden on the owner of a heavy car or truck which was not in constant use, for instance. It would impose almost an unbearable burden, furthermore, on the owner of a worn-out car, since the tax would be assessed on a flat rate, regardless of the car's value.

The most equitable automobile tax, and the least irksome, is the gasoline tax, which raises money in direct proportion to the use made of the roads. It is fair to the owner of the light car with a high gasoline mileage rate; it is fair to the owner of the truck with a low mileage rate. Gasoline consumption varies with weight and load directly, and a gasoline tax can not be evaded.

Automobile owners are inclined to be sympathetic with the problems of the taxation experts. They do not object to the gasoline tax, nor do they object seriously to the license tax. A weight-tax, however, would not be likely to meet their approval. If it be essential to raise more revenue for construction of roads, a method whose fairness is attested by experience should be employed.

Their Impressiveness Discounted.

The impressiveness of the air maneuvers scheduled for next month in which 670 army planes are to take part has been somewhat discounted by the admission of F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aeronautics, that many of the machines to be used would be inadequate for actual warfare.

Speaking at the recent dinner of the New York Society of the Military and Naval Officers of the World War, Assistant Secretary Davison frankly stated that only the newer part of our air equipment has been constructed to conform to the latest requirements of aeronautics and would be of value against the similarly efficient equipment of foreign powers.

The assistant secretary expressed pride over the fact that, in a technical sense, the army air corps is keeping pace with the progress manifested by other countries, but he made plain that this technical knowledge must be supplemented by tactical methods to be effective; that technical progress will be stunted, if not nullified, unless tactical methods do not go along with it. To acquire knowledge of tactical methods, there must be air corps operations on a large scale, and since the army is not equipped to use up-to-date machines in maneuvers of the magnitude proposed for next month, many machines inadequate for use under war conditions necessarily will have to be utilized.

The main purpose of next month's demonstration, it has been stated, is not to be a gesture inviting war, but rather a public showing of our full air defense strength as a warning against attack. How much of a warning the demonstration will carry in consideration of the fact that much of the equipment used will be inferior is a matter for conjecture.

The 670 planes to be used in the maneuvers will be manned by 797 officers and 687 enlisted men. For an air division under war conditions there should be 2,238 planes, 4,000 officers and 29,000 enlisted men, and the 2,238 planes would be chiefly of the bombardment and pursuit type.

Mr. Davison explained that the three tactical types constituting the combat branch of military aviation are pursuit planes, bombardment planes and attack planes. Of the first type we have approximately 200; of the second type, only thirty-six capable of carrying bomb loads ranging from one ton to two, and of the third, only fifty-one. The remaining 300 are observation planes, and while they are equipped to carry machine guns and small bombs and might function as an offensive arm in an air corps, their designation signifies their real purpose; they are observation planes and intended primarily for defensive purposes.

From this, it may be gleaned that our army air force is a defensive rather than an offensive organization, which should allay the fears of those who look upon the development of an air force as a threat of offensive warfare.

On the other hand, those who believe in military preparedness as a preventive of war may, and probably will, feel inclined to question the defensive power of an air force the equipment of which is admitted to be inadequate for use in actual warfare. To believers in preparedness against attack, such a situation can be little less than disquieting.

Barbers down in Ecuador are demanding an 800 per cent. duty on safety razors or the absolute prohibition of their importation. It would be interesting to know the relative number of the men who use safety razors down there and the barbers. If legislators in Ecuador are anything like what they are up here, it would give a light on the probable fate of the proposed measure.

The One "Sure Thing."

Ohio figuratively is taking it easy until the taxation session of the legislature is ended. School systems are wondering about their finances; business is wondering in what position it will be placed, and the public generally is in an unsettled state of mind as concerns taxation.

The taxation prospect shows two things clearly. First, there is a wide gap between estimated expenditures and estimated revenue in this state for the next two years. The expense budget is something like $83,000,000; revenue is approximately $58,000,000. This created a $25,000,000 deficit, on paper. In reality, it may be even greater.

The second fact that stands out clearly beyond dispute is that, by no stretch of the imagination can be legislature hope to devise the taxation set-up in such a way as to eliminate similar deficits in years to come. At least $10,000,000 of the $25,000,000 deficit would remain if all the proposals to increase revenue made by the legislative committee on taxation were to be accepted—and not all of them will be by any means.

That leaves one alternative—economy. The expense budget that has mounted upward must be forced down by every means possible. The tendency to broaden the field of government must be checked, temporarily at least, until the state can catch up with itself.

That is the one "sure thing" in sight as Ohio looks over its difficult taxation problem.

Hail the Mayor of Tarrytown.

His Honor, Mayor Eugene H. Lehman, of Tarrytown, New York, has said something that needed saying. He has refused pointedly an invitation for his town to enter a beauty contest, claiming that such contests teach girls to believe there is some sort of "honor" merely in being beautiful, and because it would be a disgrace for his community to enter such a contest of "physical beauty, but moral ugliness."

Beauty contests may have served a purpose once, but latterly they have strayed far afield; so far, indeed, that they are no longer beauty contests, but only exhibitions of the female figure. An attempt is made to select the best-looking girl, but considering the contestants next to nothing is proved. Real beauty is frightened away from the contests—if it ever really were attracted by them—since the grasping hand of commercialization has become so plain. The "moral ugliness" mentioned by the mayor of Tarrytown came to the contests with the contestants.

America has been just a bit beauty mad, in all probability. It can profit from occasional reminders that there are other qualities just as important, and that true beauty does not vaunt itself for gain. The mayor of Tarrytown has set a good example.

Editorial Opinion.

FACT OUTWEIGHS LEGAL FICTION.

It is a familiar complaint, only too well founded, that often in the administration of justice social facts are ignored because of the alleged necessity of adhering to some abstract legal assumption. Today the tendency is definitely toward bringing law and reality into harmony. The recent decision of the United States supreme court in the case of Aldridge, a southern Negro convicted of murder and sentenced to death, affords significant proof of that wholesome tendency.

The court held that the trial judge erred gravely in refusing to allow counsel for the defendant to examine the talesmen as to their possible racial prejudices. That error was deemed sufficient to entitle the accused to a new trial. Chief Justice Hughes in presenting the court's decision said that it would be far more detrimental to justice to bar questions concerning prejudice, where prejudice was known to exist and to affect human relations, than it would be to allow such questions to be asked contrary to a purely theoretical idea as to prejudice's nonexistence.

Clearly the law should face facts, not try to evade them because they are disturbing. Justice in each concrete case demands due recognition of all the relevant factors and circumstances. Prejudice, racial, religious or other, is a stubborn fact which obtrudes its ugly head in many cases brought to trial. Proper questions relating to it when there is reason to suspect its existence certainly should be allowed if, according to experience and common sense, its presence or absence may determine the issue in a criminal trial.

The decision of the supreme court is both sound and humane.—Chicago News.

IS HIS FAITHFULNESS AN ASSET?

A recent utterance by Newton D. Baker, secretary of war throughout most of the Wilson administration, is being interpreted as an indication that Mr. Baker is a receptive candidate for the next Democratic presidential nomination, and one of the journalistic diagnosticians in Washington mentions as an element of "potential strength," the fact that the ex-secretary is "intimately associated with the most important elements in the Woodrow Wilson tradition."

The Democratic party at its gatherings regularly eulogizes the memory, record and policies of Woodrow Wilson, and his picture always is on the wall. But generally the matter rests there. No disposition to revive the old "League of Nations" issue or to champion the other Wilsonian policies manifests itself. The leaders and delegates are content to applaud, and pass on to other subjects.

Mr. Baker, on the other hand, takes his allegiance to the doctrines promulgated by his old chief seriously. At the national convention of his party in New York he ascended the rostrum for the especial purpose of taxing the gathering with practical desertion in the face of verbal adherence.

It is quite possible that Mr. Baker's nomination and election "might bring about the revival of the Wilsonian politices, both in the foreign and domestic field," for there is no question about his faithfulness to the tradition of the administration with which he was identified. But whether a reputation for such fidelity will be an element of actual strength that will assist him in getting a presidential nomination from his party is another matter.—Detroit Free Press.

BRIAND SPARS FOR TIME.

Undoubtedly the mustachioed foreign minister of France would have preferred a young earthquake to the Austro-German customs union. Some such natural catastrophe, cataclysmic though it be, would not have upset his plans so badly. M. Briand had been working patiently for years to erect a structure of federalism in Europe, founded in French hegemony and perpetuating the present frontiers.

Now he is thrown on the defensive by the project the Teutonic nations have bared. The immediate reaction of France was to strike out blindly, with invective and threat, against a scheme to them malignant and subversive. This procedure won little sympathy from a world hardened to patriotic fulmination and adjusted now to realities. So French technic has changed.

Briand presses hard for acceptance of his brain-child, the "United States of Europe," but, fearing the worst, he has an alternative plan to thwart the ambitions of his Teutonic neighbors. An economic federation of Balkan state, affiliated with France, would offset the dangers of an Austro-German Zollverein, he reasons, and then proceeds to lay the groundwork for it.

Thus it goes, with Germany and France sparring for time until one or the other can get in a smashing drive to the point of the chin. The continent appears quiet, in comparison with a fortnight ago, but in fact the chanceries of diplomacy are busier than ever. The difference is that in this particular stage of the conflict, press releases are few, while secret pourparlers are many. Later the theater of war will return to the press and the public forum, and it will be a better show.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Let Years Temper Sports.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Once upon a time there was a philosopher who talked of many things. He told his students: "If you lift a calf every day you can lift it when it gets to be a cow!"

Alas! There comes a day when, try as you will, sweat and strain, you just can't get the beast off all four feet. There is a limit to human effort.

Another man was sure that regular exercise of the eyes by daily reading would make it possible to go on to the end of life without spectacles. But, sure as fate, the day comes when the type blurs beyond possibility of recognition.

Natural law operates to defeat our will and fondest hopes. Age is inexorable. We must bow to the inevitable.

What makes me say all this?

A letter from the editor of the Toronto Star called my attention to four sudden deaths from heart disease among Canadian curlers this past winter. This wise man is worried over the dangers of strenuous exercise for men past middle age.

He has a right to be worried.

My friends, men and women past middle life, can not do with safety what they did in early life with ease. There comes a time when the calf is too heavy and the eyes too feeble to do what our minds try to make us believe we can continue to do.

The other day I had a letter from a famous retired officer, a general in the World war. In rejecting my appeal that he participate in a public function he whimsically said: "The old gray mare, she ain't what she used to be!"

Why can't other wise men realize this?

Curling, bowling, polo, tennis, and even swimming and golf, can be a menace to the welfare of those along in life. Some of these sports make too violent demands on heart and blood vessels; others, if too long continued, produce dangerous fatigue.

As we advance in life, the warnings that stop the youth become less compelling. Pain is not so acute in age. We are not so aware ourselves of what the onlooker may observe. In short, we can easily overexert ourselves and yet be unconscious of what we are doing until we wake up in the hospital. Unfortunately, the awakening may be in another world.

As we grow older, the blood vessel walls become harder, just as lumber hardens with age. The vessels are brittle and easily broken. Sudden exertion throws such pressure on the inelastic tissues that they may give way, causing bleeding into the brain perhaps, with sudden death just ahead.

Don't gamble with your appearance and feeling of health. Age has its compensations, but physical intemperance is not one of them. It is better sometimes to be an excited onlooker, than to face the dangers of participating in a strenuous contest.

Measuring the Stars.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

There was a time in the history of science when every thing was measured roughly. In physics, astronomy, chemistry, the calendar—everything was measured with a certain degree of approximation. The scientists were content with what reasonably accurate results. They scarcely hoped for anything better. Their instruments were crude, their methods of measurement imperfect, they got what they could in the way of results and went their way rejoicing, more or less.

Today all that is changed. Accuracy is an indispensable condition nowadays for all scientific work. Instruments must be in very truth instruments of precision. The results must be accurate to an almost inconceivable degree of refinement. Perhaps the choice between two scientific theories may depend upon a measurement involving a millionth of an inch.

Take the great reflector on Mt. Wilson, for example. It is so accurate that it could detect the light of a candle at a distance of five miles; or, to put it another way, the illumination of an arc-light at the distance of the moon. One of the most marvelous of modern instruments of precision in the measurements measuring temperature to one ten-millionth of a degree.

Again, take the micrometer, which means an instrument for measuring small differences. Today it is possible to measure with precision the change in direction of a point seventy miles away when the observer moves his instrument along a base-line a single inch.

An immense amount of work has been done by astronomers in the past in the effort to count the stars. Of course, all the stars have not been counted yet, but the increase in accuracy of our instruments have given rise to results which are almost incredible. Stars used to be counted in terms of thousands or tens of thousands. As the telescopes became larger, the mode of measurement more refined, the results almost staggered credulity. We can scarcely do more, with accuracy, than to count the stars in our own galaxy—that is, in the system of the Milky Way. Ten or fifteen years ago, a photographic chart of the heavens would be made; certain fractions of the whole considered for star count, and the number of stars in all the fractions added up to make the grand total. This figure was approximately 1,500,000,000. Today, as Floyd Darrow points out in his interesting work, "The New World of Physicial Discovery," we are sure that there are about thirty times that number of stars in our galaxy—say 40,000,000,000 of stars. This count includes the very faintest of stars, which we call stars of the twenty-first magnitude.—Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Ohio Presidents.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

How many presidents has Ohio given the nation? is a question frequently asked. To answer it correctly, the questioner should be asked to be explicit. Does he mean how many presidents were natives of the state, or how many were resident in the state at the time they were elected? In the different forms the question calls for different answers.

If the question is how many native sons of Ohio have reached the presidency? the answer is seven. Only Virginia equals that record. The natives of this state who have been elected president are U. S. Grant, born in Clermont county; Rutherford B. Hayes, born in Delaware county; James A. Garfield, born in Cuyahoga; Benjamin Harrison, born in Hamilton; William McKinley, born in Trumbull; William H. Taft, born in Hamilton, and Warren G. Harding, born in Morrow county.

If the form of the question is, how many presidents have been elected from this state?—that is were living in Ohio at the time of their election—the answer is but six. They are William Henry Harrison, elected from Hamilton county; Rutherford B. Hayes, elected from Sandusky county; James A. Garfield, elected from Cuyahoga county; William McKinley, elected from Stark county; William H. Taft, elected from Hamilton county, and Warren G. Harding, elected from Marion county.

By changing the form of the question to this one, Ohio gains one, but loses two. William Henry Harrison was elected from Ohio, but was born in Virginia, and Ulysses S. Grant and Benjamin Harrison were born in this state, but elected from elsewhere, General Grant from Illinois and Harrison from Indiana.

It is interesting to note that five presidents are buried in the soil of Ohio—William Henry Harrison in North Bend; R. B. Hayes in Fremont; J. A. Garfield in Cleveland; William McKinley in Canton, and Warren G. Harding in Marion.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, April 27.—They're still looking for a man around Uncle Sam's treasury in Washington to take the place of Joseph McCoy, who died recently.

The job that McCoy filled was not one that projected him personally into the public eye. He was known by few outside the treasury. But his work vitally affected untold numbers.

Probably readers are familiar with it. Did they ever read in the papers a story under a Washington dateline that began: "The treasury estimates that ——" and in the subsequent paragraphs gave the financial outlook of the country?

That story was based upon the work of McCoy, who until his death was the treasury actuary and chief prognosticator of American finances.

Of course, the work still is going on. Under studies and various others in the treasury are doing the figuring until a successor to McCoy can be found.

• • •

But care must be exercised in the selection of a new actuary. That was McCoy's great quality—he was one of the most careful men in Washington.

Upon the calculations of the actuary Secretary Mellon relies as his chief guide in announcing financial prospects.

The actuary is one of three who engage in this sort of work. His figures go to Secretary Mellon and Under-Secretary Mills, where they are compared with those of Robert G. Heller, commissioner of accounts and deposits, and W. R. Stark in the section of financial and economic research.

From the three the secretary and the undersecretary prepare their forecasts.

How the actuary goes about his work is pretty much his own secret.

He must figure out how much Uncle Sam can expect from sources like income taxes. He must speculate on how much tobacco will be consumed. He must take into consideration how many rich men will die and how large their estates.

Sometimes he is made out as a veritable prophet. The question of his accuracy furnishes a rare morsel for debate in congress. When he talks of surplus and debt reduction interest is aroused. Such figures make excellent material for political stump speaking campaigns.

But when he errs, more than likely it is on the side of caution—that is, over-estimating under for surplus.

It's a Possibility.

REJECTS PLEA OF RADIO CORP.

Supreme Court Refuses To Review Case Involving Alleged Patents Pool.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 27—The Radio Corporation of America today was refused a review by the supreme court to test out a lower court decision holding that patent cross-licensing contracts with some 25 manufacturers of radio apparatus were illegal under the Clayton act. The controversy involved the contracts of the De Forest Radio company, that the Radio Corporation of America, American Telephone and Telegraph company, the General Electric company, the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company of America, the Wireless Specialty Apparatus company and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company had between October 1920 and March 1921 entered into a series of agreements, purporting to pool the patent rights, of all the companies relating to radio.

It was alleged by the De Forest company that in January 1927 the Radio Corporation entered into license agreements with 25 radio receiving set manufacturers, purporting to lincense them under the various circuit patents of all the companies to the patent pool and requiring the receiving set manufacturers to buy all tubes needed for their sets from the Radio Corporation.

The De Forest Co. insisted this feature of the license agreements was prohibitory and that it prevented the set manufacturers from purchasing tubes from any one except the Radio Corporation.

The Delaware district court held that the provision in the contract relating to the tubes was obnoxious to the Clayton act, constituting a contract for the sale of goods upon the condition that the purchaser should not use or deal in the goods of a competitor, its effect being to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a potential monopoly.

The court struck out that provision of the contract and permitted the remainder to remain in full force. The Radio Corporation contended this forced those granting the licenses to be held to a contract to which they had never consented.

SCHOOLS TO RESUME BANKING TUESDAY

Pupils' Accounts Transferred from Loan Co. to National City Bank.

School banking will be resumed Tuesday morning in Marion public schools, Superintendent George A. Bowman announced this morning. The regular schedule of banking weekly on Tuesday mornings will be carried on.

The announcement follows a week spent in transferring accounts from the Citizens' Building & Loan Co. to the National City Bank & Trust Co. With the transfer of accounts they again become active.

The appointment of a receiver for the Citizens Building & Loan Co. some time ago, caused school officials to refuse to accept further deposits for that institution.

Special bulletins have been sent out to each home from the offices of the superintendent, instructing the parents of the change of banking institutions.

Prior to the assignment of a receiver to the Citizens' Building & Loan Co., the school banking deposits were carried by both the Citizens' company and National City Bank & Trust Co., and the student selected the institution in which he wished to carry his account.

Makes Accusations Against Communists in Talk to N. Y. Firemen; Declares Object Is To Undermine U. S. Institutions.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 27—Mayor Walker, who is facing removal proceedings on charges of condoning incompetency and encouraging corruption, ascribes his difficulties to Communist activities.

Speaking before a communion breakfast of 2,000 members of the New York City fire department yesterday, he said he was merely the "temporary target" and that the attack would be widened to include other public men. Its object, he said, was to tear down American institutions.

"The efforts will become more manifest as the movement to destroy confidence in city officials grows," he said. "It is a matter not so much for one to worry about as business to worry about after they undermine public confidence in the city municipal government. Then the state, then the nation—then they will go into the business world."

The mayor without mentioning names referred to men "who ascend the pulpit pretending a background of Christ's holy word." A week ago in his reply to Governor Roosevelt, the mayor made caustic mention of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community church, who signed the charges against him.

Mr. Holmes, at the academy of music in Brooklyn, yesterday attacked Mayor Walker, Tammany and the "Republican machine" which he said, "shares in the spoils."

MURDER CITED AS VINDICATION

Mrs. Blacklidge Says Circumstances of Slaying Clear Her of Slaying.

By The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 27—Complete vindication of an accusation that she was a party to the faro game swindle in which she lost $50,000, was claimed today by Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former internal revenue collector of northern Illinois through her identification of the body of George "Big" Perry, as the leader of the swindlers.

Mrs. Blacklidge came to South Bend yesterday and pointed to Perry as one of the three men who fled with the $50,000 after a card game three months ago at Springfield, Ill. Edward R. Litsinger, a member of the Chicago board of review who lent her the money accused Mrs. Blacklidge of being a party to the swindle. Litsinger maintained he was unaware of the nature of the transaction. Subsequently Mrs. Blacklidge resigned her internal revenue position.

Meanwhile the police were searching for Roy Browder and Roscoe Reynolds on the theory they were involved in the fatal shooting of Perry last Friday night near the garage at the home of his father-in-law, John Caniff. They expressed belief Browder and Reynolds were Perry's pals in the swindle and that Perry was slain because he "double crossed" them in dividing of the loot of the faro game swindle.

PROPOSE NEW RULES FOR TWO CHURCHES

Divorce and Birth Control Subjects of Episcopal and Presbyterian Reports.

guilty part in a divorce granted for infidelity, although he can remarry the innocent party with the consent of the bishop.

New Rules Outlined

The revised canon covering the point reads:

"Any person to whom a divorce from a former marriage has been granted for any cause by a civil court may after the expiration of one year from the granting of the divorce apply to his bishop or the ecclesiastical marital court of his domicile for permission to marry another person. * * * If the bishop or court permits the proposed marriage, a minister of the church may solemnize the marriage, provided, however, that he shall not solemnize it in the church or by the form contained in the book of common prayer."

In giving its approval to birth control, the commission of the Presbyterian church said:

"Earnest Christian people are asking for the church's guidance on the subject of birth control. This subject demands attention today as never before. Economic conditions and a worthy standard of living make it wrong to bring children into the world without adequate provision for their nurture and proper consideration for the health of the mother."

Spiritual Ideals Stressed

If birth control is practiced, the report continues, "it should only be in fidelity to the highest spiritual ideals of the Christian home."

The church reaffirmed its position that "nothing but adultery or such wilful desertion as can in no way be remedied by the church or civil magistrate is cause sufficient for dissolving the bond of matrimony."

The Presbyterian report will be submitted to the general assembly of the church in Pittsburgh May 28. The Episcopalian revision will be presented to the general convention in Denver Sept. 16.

FEAR NAVAL PACT MAY BE BLOCKED

French Authorities Study Reply of Britain to Proposals for Agreement.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, April 27—The foreign office and ministry of marine today studied a British foreign office note containing Downing Street's answer to French proposals seeking a solution for Franco-Italian-British naval difficulties.

While the contents of the British communication were kept a closely guarded secret, there was disguised pessimism in some quarters today and feeling that the note would mark a breakdown, for the present at least, of negotiations which had looked to completion of a tripartite accord.

The French note, to which the British note was an answer, was dispatched last week, and offered to go ahead with the naval accord, leaving the question of 1936-36 superannuated tonnage until 1936.

The British answer was received here only Sunday but consideration of it began immediately.

Circles which have wished for a naval accord hoped that Downing Street, while possibly turning thumbs down on France's proposal, had offered new British proposals, or in some other fashion left the door open so that negotiations seeking a settlement of the naval difficulties may continue.

Authority Offers Two Recipes for Rewinning Slender Form

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

I've had many requests for an article on reducing lotions and I think it is a propitious time for a few words on this subject.

Reducing lotions are so apt to be worthless that a great deal of skepticism is prevalent regarding them. However, there is one that will reduce when properly used if the excess weight is fat formed by overeating, improperly balanced diet or lack of exercise.

And here it is . . . our own reducing lotion. It consists of alcohol and camphor and you can make it yourself. To one quart of rubbing alcohol add two small cakes of camphor, shaving it finely before adding it to the alcohol so that it will dissolve readily. When the camphor has dissolved the preparation is ready for use.

Reduce "Fatty" Spots

It is patted on those parts of the body which are too large from collections of fat and under such circumstances usually is most effective. However, if the oversize is caused by hard, healthy muscular development the lotion will not work.

The treatment should be taken twice each day until the fatty spots have been reduced to the desired size. Don't rub the liquid on but pat it lightly over the parts to be reduced, the idea being not to rub it into the skin but to allow it to penetrate into the pores. Hard rubbing may prove irritating to the skin.

I've been experimenting with Epsom and water and this too is good for reducing collections of fatty tissue. To one quart of water add one-half cup of Epsom salts and let it stand for twenty-four hours. By that time the water will have absorbed as much of the salts as is possible. Pour off the Epsom salts water, heat it and apply hot Epsom salts compresses to the parts you want to reduce.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Desires Revealed

JULIAN LAKE, stretched out on ...w chairs in the garden, seemed ...e forgotten his ill temper. He ... Nora amiably that Mrs. Nevers ...ed on their keeping the villa ...several weeks longer.

But he was planning something, she knew. Some crazy scheme that might lead to prison this time. For she knew he no longer received that small quarterly check that had allowed them barely to scrape along.

"Julian," she asked, "why did Magdalenna come back today?"

"She could not live without my charming presence," he said.

"You borrowed the money to pay her, from Nicholas Thayer. Promise me you won't borrow from him again!"

"I promise. You shall do it next time," he conceded.

Meantime the days went by, filled with this shadow. They had no money. What was going to become of them?

Nicholas had regained his vitality almost at once; but his hand had stiffened and he stayed on at the Villa Rosa. Nora suspected because he was too indifferent to look up other lodgings. She felt more at ease with him but he was as morose as ever.

One afternoon when she had gone into Florence alone she met him. He was lost, he told her, without his work. They wandered into the Duomo together, in one of the chapels with candles burning on the altar Nora suddenly knelt, her long slim body bent like a flower in the wind. He stood leaning against a pilar watching her.

The candles on the altar, the smell of incense and wax tapers, of dying flowers, filled him with a strange uneasiness.

"What were you praying for?" he asked curiously when they came out.

She shook her head without telling him. He saw her fresh white skin and dark little head and he smiled to think that she should still pray, after all the seamy side of life she must have known, traveling with that tramp of a father.

They wandered on toward the Campanile. It had been raining and now the streets were drying and the very atmosphere seemed washed in gold. Nora was suffocated with beauty as she looked toward the Campanile, now a tower of gold, now a pillar of pearl. They stood watching the color swim away. For the first time he felt an actual kinship with her.

Then they hailed a fiacre that ambled past, behind a meek skinny horse. The old horse clattered over the cobbles and was whipped up the hills by the pirate on the driver's seat.

"Tell him not to hurry, please!" Nora cried, "that horse is so tired."

Nicholas called out his order.

"It's not wise to care so much about others' feelings," he said.

"But you can't help it, can you?" Nora asked.

"I help it."

The fiacre clattered and jolted along the road.

Nicholas looked at her face, a little troubled, and he asked:

"What are you thinking of?"

"I was thinking of you."

She was so naive that he smiled. "I was thinking of what you said the other night—that it's all futility. You couldn't mean that, could you?"

"Yes, I mean it."

It was his bitterness that touched her. But she only said:

"But I wouldn't want to go on living if I felt that that was all there was."

"Wouldn't you?" Nicholas asked with a curious harshness.

Then his mood changed and he said, "Sometimes I know that I'm going to do something I'll like, but if I thought I was like all these others who fool themselves I should stop painting."

"I saw the peasant woman that you painted. I thought it was beautiful," she said a little timidly.

They had come to the gate of the Villa Rosa and Nicholas flung some money to the driver. Nicholas opened the gate on its rusty hinges and they went in together. Once inside she knew she would not see him again until dinner, when the conversation would belong to him and her father.

"Let's have tea in the garden," Nora said.

He followed her down to the kitchen and stood watching her fill the kettle and put it over the charcoal brazier, cut crustly slices of bread, fill the milk jug.

She carried out the loaded tray while he followed with the tea pot. He was still unable to use his right hand. They arranged the chipped cups and Nora poured tea, asking him hopefully if he liked it very strong.

"Very strong!" he said, smiling.

He was pleasant when he smiled so, with two deep creases down his thin cheeks. His illness had made his face seem a little cruel.

"Tell me what it's like where you live," she asked him shyly.

He looked amused, but he began to tell her about the old Dutch house that dreamed on the Hudson in a place not far from Albany.

42 MAD PURSUIT hnr

"Julian has relatives there. He says they're the dreadful bourgeois" she smiled; "they live in an enormous white stone house with butlers at every window. It must be nice to be rich. I'm so desperately tired of being poor."

"Poor?" he cried with a sudden vehemence. "Have you ever been hungry? Have you ever felt your body so soaked with damp and chill that you would have sold your soul for a fire? Until you've known those things you haven't been poor. You have enough to eat, a roof over your head—what more is there to ask for?"

She leaned forward, her luminous eyes on his. He could almost hear her heart beating in her voice.

"Not to be afraid."

He did not answer

The simple words she had spoken seemed to have taken on a significance deeper than she dared utter. Nicholas stood up.

"I'm going away tomorrow."

"I want you to stay."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday. My grandfather didn't get home Saturday night from his fishing trip until after me and Jubilee had went to bed, and when he did get home he was carrying a fish about three inches long on his string and was singing a song called "Sweet Addoline." I wouldn't of knowed it only Jubilee woke me up growling, and I bet if I hadn't got my hand on his goozle and shut him off just when I did he would have barked and then my mother would of found out how come she always gets flees when she makes up my bed.

When we had went back to sleep and then waked up again yesterday morning and I had let him down by the rope in his teeth and put on my short britches and went down I found the little fish hanging outside of the kitchen door just high enough up so the cat couldn't get it by jumping, but it was near the hydrant so every time she had jumped she had got some mud on her feet, and I could see on the side of the house that she had been jumping all night, and she had jumped almost to it. I guess she was disappointed because she couldn't get it, but she would of been worse disapopinted if she had of got it, because she would of got the hook along with it, and my grandfather would of been more supprized than ever when he got up and found out what he had brung home.

When I had milked the dummed brutes and went in to feed my face my unkle was just telling my grandfather that he looked like he was nursing a dark brown hang over, and my grandfather told him to mind his business. Then my ant asted him where was the fish he caught, and he said he left them outside the door, and he went out to get them and bring them in and all there was was the little three inch fish, and my grandfather went up in the air and exploded like a skyrocker.

He said he caught three of the finest bass he ever caught and another fisherman that hadn't caught any came along, and it was cold and misty out on the river and the other fisherman gave him some cordial so he couldn't catch peonia, and they fished together quite a while, and they must have got their strings mixed. Then my grandfather said he remembered hearing someone singing Sweet Addoline when he got home and he wanted to know if it was my father, but my father said it was his wife's father. Everyone laughed so loud I thought I could sneak out without getting washed by my ant, but she was watching me. I didn't have to clean the fish my grandfather caught. I gave it to the cat.

Today was Monday and nothing happened. Podgeen Dooley came up from Shanty Town, and Spider Gutwaltz picked a fight with him and got licked. Spider isn't such a good picker.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Begins the Task of Placating Her Mother-in-Law.

"WHOM did you tell about Hank Junior?" I asked, hiding my quick dismay at my almost certain knowledge of what would be his answer. He had been near the kitchen when his father had sent him down to have Jim bring the car around to the door and "I told Jim and Katie, too," he said slowly. "I didn't know it was a secret."

"O course, you didn't, and I'm not blaming you. I simply want you both to remember that it is always best not to speak of things that have happened, until you are very sure that they are not secrets."

I broke off abruptly and stared at the floor, seeing endless difficulties in the way of sparing the sensitiveness of Hank and Bill with so many people cognizant of their sartorial trouble. I knew that I must go directly to my mother-in-law's room. I could not risk her being in a bad humor when my father should talk to her as he had planned about the name which he so longed to give his new little granddaughter. How long I should have to remain with her I did not know—placating my captious mother-in-law is a long task sometimes—and if the boys came back before I had had a chance to talk to Katie, her garrulous tongue would be sure to appraise them, sooner or later that their secret was theirs no longer.

Junior slided up to me and tugged at my arm

Madge "Tackles" Mother

"Couldn't I fix it some way, Mums?" he asked eagerly. "I could go down and tell Katie and Jim that it was a secret and that I oughtn't to have said anything and that they mustn't say anything so the boys could hear."

"Yes, we could do that," amended Roderick, who misses no opportunity to declare himself in on any enterprise.

"Yes, you could do that," I answered, snatching at the straw they offered. "Go down, both of you now, and tell Katie and Jim I do not wish them to say anything about the scorched trousers or to say anything except 'Good after noon' to the boys if they should get back before I get down to the kitchen. Tell her I'll be down there in a few minutes."

"All right, we'll go and tell her," they chorused. But at the door they hesitated and looked back.

"You'll see we can keep the secret," Junior said stoutly, "and then it will be all right about Ruby Pearl and Opal Violet, won't it?"

"Yes, dear," I said, disciplining my twitching lips until I was sure the youngsters were outside the door. Then I rested my tautened nerves with a laugh. I had no fear that my indulgence of this queer whim would lead to any permanent nicknames for the baby. I know how evanescent are the fancies of children, and even if they were unusually tenacious upon this particular point, I had confidence enough in my own powers of disencouragement, if cautiously applied, to insure their eventual abandonment of the ridiculous names.

A glance at my wrist watch reminded me that I had no time to waste upon either mirth or reflection. Reluctantly I pulled myself together and went down the hall to my mother-in-law's room. She knows my knock, and I knew that she was still in a bad humor by the length of time it took her to answer it. When at last she came to the door, she pretended not to have known who was knocking—a little trick which she employs whenever she is angry.

"Oh! it's you, is it?" she said dourly. "Come in."

She stood stiffly holding the door as I passed her, then closed it, walked back into the room and pushed forward a chair with the air of one offering a seat to some troublesome business caller to whom could be offered the minimum of courtesy.

"Sit down," she said, and I meekly obeyed her, although the old Adam within me urged a speedy exit. For aside from the deference which I always strive to give to Dicky's mother because of her age and infirmity, I was especially anxious to get her placated before the after-dinner interview which my father wished with her. Upon this depended the name he wished so ardently to bestow upon the tiny new princess who was the grandchild of both of them, and I knew that if Mother Graham were vexed with me, she would be in no mood to listen to my father.

So it was for his sake that I "bent the pregnant hinges of the knees," and spoke quickly and placatingly:

"I came to apologize to you, Mother, for making you wait for me. But I could not help it. If I had not gone down just at that minute, Hank and Bill might have been terribly humiliated."

"How?"

The syllable was not encouraging, but I went on explaining at length the dread of the two boys that the scorching of their trousers, might become the occasion for ridicule especially upon Marion's part, and the conspiracy of silence I had instituted.

"Young whippersnappers! Ought to be made to face facts. You're altogether too easy with them."

This was her comment when I had finished, but her voice was pitched in a much milder tone than the one which had greeted my entrance.

"But you won't say anything about it?" I said, and regretted my rashness as soon as I had uttered the words, for she drew herself up majestically, and her voice was frigid with offended dignity.

"Margaret, am I in the habit of commenting upon occurrences in this household?" she demanded.
